New Podcast Series: Connecting Communities and Dementia

SPIN-D Network+ is proud to launch the first episode in our new podcast series Connecting Communities and Dementia – a space for vital conversations on inclusion, lived experience, and community-led responses to dementia and brain health.

This episode features Di Burbidge from CHINESE WELLBEING , Ruth Eley from tide (together in dementia everyday), and Dr Clare Hammerton, SPIN-D's Coproduction and People and Carers Involvement Lead.

Together, they reflect on the powerful journey of Chinese Wellbeing to raise awareness and deliver culturally appropriate brain health and dementia services to the Chinese community in Liverpool. The series will follow their ongoing dialogue, evolving monthly as Di, Ruth, and Clare explore the challenges, learning, and impact of this work.
